WATER DIVISION

RESOLUTION W-4556
AUGUST 25, 2005

R E S O L U T I O N

(RES. W-4556), GREAT OAKS WATER COMPANY (Great Oaks)
REQUESTS A WAIVER OF THE REQUIREMENTS OF THE COMMISSION'S GENERAL RATE CASE PLAN FOR CLASS A WATER UTILITIES, DECISION 04-06-018, TO FILE ITS NEXT GENERAL RATE CASE BY AN ADVICE LETTER INSTEAD OF AN APPLICATION. APPROVED.

By Advice Letter 172, filed on June 10, 2005

SUMMARY

This resolution grants the Great Oaks' request to file its General Rate Case (GRC) by advice letter rather than by application. The request is granted as an experiment to determine whether and when the advice letter process may be a suitable alternative to the formal application process.

BACKGROUND

In D.04-06-018, the Commission addressed implementation of Code) § 455.2 (AB 2838, Chapter 1147, 2002, Canciamilla)¹ which requires water companies with greater 455.2. (a) The commission shall issue its final decision on a general rate case application of a water corporation with greater than 10,000 service connections in a manner that ensures that the commission's decision becomes effective on the first day of the first test year in the general rate increase application.

than 10,000 service connections to file a general rate case application every three years. Great Oaks was due to file its application in July 2005 pursuant to the filing schedule in D.04-06-018 (Appendix, p.18, slip opinion).

On May 24, 2005, pursuant to Rule 48(a) of the Commission's Rules of Practice and Procedure, the ORA requested an extension of time from the Executive Director to file its Notice of Deficiency until July 8, 2005. On June 9, 2005, the Executive Director denied that request because such a delay may jeopardize timely rate relief for Great Oaks pursuant to Code § 455.2. In addition, the Executive Director told Great Oaks that it may, pursuant to Section G of D.04-06-018, request Commission authorization to file its GRC by advice letter rather than by application. On June 10, 2005, Great Oaks filed advice letter 172 seeking such authorization. Previous to all of the discussion regarding the General Rate Case filing process of Great Oaks, we note ORA's comments in R.03-09-005 dated April 8, 2005 where ORA said "...parties...work collaboratively to establish a five-year rate case cycle, instead of the current 3 year cycle. ...If something is not

(b) If the commission's decision is not effective in accordance with subdivision (a), the applicant may file a tariff implementing interim rates that may be increased by an amount equal to the rate of inflation as compared to existing rates. The interim rates shall be effective on the first day of the first test year in the general rate case application. These interim rates shall be subject to refund and shall be adjusted upward or downward back to the interim rate effective date, consistent with the final rates adopted by the commission. The commission may authorize a lesser increase in interim rates if the commission finds the rates to be in the public interest. If the presiding officer in the case determines that the commission's decision cannot become effective on the first day of the first test year due to actions by the water corporation, the presiding officer or commission may require a different effective date for the interim rates or final rates.

(c) The commission shall establish a schedule to require every water corporation subject to the rate case plan for water corporations to file an application pursuant to the plan every three years. The plan shall include a provision to allow the filing requirement to be waived upon mutual agreement of the commission and the water corporation. (Emphasis added)

(d) The requirements of subdivisions (a) and (b) may be waived at any time by mutual consent of the executive director of the commission and the water corporation.

done, ORA will probably have to choose which rate cases to intervene in and not participate in others.”

NOTICE

Notice of Advice Letter 172 was made by publication in the Commission’s Daily Calendar. Great Oaks states that a copy of the Advice Letter was mailed and distributed in accordance with Section III-G of General Order 96-A.

PROTEST TO THE ADVICE LETTER

On June 30, 2005, ORA protested Advice Letter 172 as violating PU Code § 455.2 and D.04-06-018. ORA contended that the relief requested was “inappropriate for the advice letter process” and that an evidentiary hearing and a Commission order are necessary to resolve Great Oaks’ request.

In response, Great Oaks argued that the waiver option created by 455.2 (c) contemplates that variances from the application process and schedule adopted by the Commission are permissible, so long as authorized by the Commission and the water corporation. Great Oaks also points to Standard Practice U-8-W, which supports using a less-expensive informal process, “provided justification is fully set forth therein.”

DISCUSSION

As required by § 455.2(c), the Commission adopted a Rate Case Plan which established a schedule requiring every Class A water corporation, including Great Oaks, to file a general rate case application on a three-year cycle. See D.04-06-018, Appendix A. As also required by that statute, the Rate Case Plan included a provision to allow the filing requirement to be waived upon mutual agreement of the Commission and the water corporation. The Rate Case Plan specified that such a proposal should be presented to the Commission via the advice letter process. Great Oaks has used this process to present its proposal to use the advice letter process rather than an application for its 2005 general rate case.

In creating the waiver process the Commission contemplated only a proposal to delay or reschedule the general rate case. The Commission did not consider the option of using the advice letter process in place of an application, as Great Oaks proposes. However, the Commission already uses the advice letter process for smaller (Class B, C, and D) water utilities. The burden of justifying the proposed rate increase is the same in both processes - the utility has the burden of proving that its proposed rate increase is necessary to maintain just and reasonable service.

The advice letter process differs from the application process in that public events are reduced. The advice letter process does not include evidentiary hearings, and relies more on careful auditing and staff determinations of reasonable forecasts. General rate cases for small water utilities, while often including contentious issues, typically do not have enough dollars at stake to justify the expense of public litigation.

We believe that the advice letter process may be a useful alternative to the application process for certain Class A general rate case filings. As an experiment, we will therefore authorize Great Oaks to file its 2005 GRC by advice letter. The goal of this experiment is to see whether we can capture the best features of the advice letter and application processes.

Applications, and the public hearings associated with them, are a means for resolving contentious, fact-intensive utility requests. But treating every GRC as if it will be contentious and filled with factual disputes may be unrealistic, particularly in the water industry, where experience shows that many issues or entire GRCs may be settled by agreement among all parties. The potential harm of treating every GRC as if it would be litigated to the hilt is that we may be committing excess resources or committing them prematurely. The resulting inefficiencies ultimately are borne by ratepayers.

If we are able to process the Great Oaks' GRC through an advice letter, Great Oaks should save regulatory expenses. Water Division and ORA are both experienced with advice letter and application processes, so we anticipate no difficulty adjusting on their part, and in fact the managers of the respective divisions should be better able, under this experimental approach, to deploy their personnel according to their needs and Commission priorities. These are our hopes, at any rate; the experiment will put them to the test.

Great Oaks is a promising candidate for the advice letter process because it has only one district, with approximately 20,000 connections. A single district water utility with relatively few connections typically has straightforward accounting, which greatly simplifies cost and revenue forecasting. Great Oaks also does not have corporate subsidiaries. Regulated and unregulated subsidiaries often lead to contentious rate case issues.

The advice letter process should be used to resolve as many issues as possible, and hopefully all issues. We encourage staff and the company to meet and confer to resolve issues. However, the formal process will remain an option for issues where an impasse is reached. To the extent staff identifies major issues that require a formal process, our staff should use Alternative Dispute Resolution or targeted, expedited hearings to resolve these issues. Since Great Oaks has already prepared its proposed application in anticipation of going through a GRC application under the Rate Case Plan, it should be possible for Great Oaks to quickly prepare an application narrowed to issues remaining after the informal process, should recourse to hearings be necessary.

Finally, after the Great Oaks case is completed, all involved staff shall evaluate the process to determine successes and identify areas where improvement is possible.

No hearing is necessary.

There are no disputed issues of material fact, and no hearing regarding Advice Letter 172 is necessary.
